

"Whenever the circuit court judge, before whom a criminal or penal prosecution is had, shall entertain doubts on any point of law which shall be decided by him during such trial, he shall have the power of adjourning over such doubtful points of law, to be decided by the court of appeals, and in the meantime may delay the execution of the sentence in such case, until the court of appeals have decided such doubtful points of law; or the accused may apply to a judge of the court of appeals for a writ of error, (in any criminal or penal prosecution,) which may be granted by him, and shall act as a supersedeas to the judgment of the court in which the trial was had, until the opinion of the court of appeals, on the questions involved, shall be entered in the circuit court, which shall be governed thereby."

I was somewhat surprised to find, after the adjournment of the house last evening, that a misapprehension prevailed among members, in reference to the character of my amendment. It contains two propositions, that are perfectly plain in their character. The first is, that when a judge of a circuit court tries a case, and entertains a doubt on a point of law, he may carry the point of law to the court of appeals. Now, what will be the result of that proposition? Where a point of law is such that a judge entertains serious doubts, and he is perfectly certain in his mind that he is right, and that every thinking man in this house, that there is a possibility that the counsel for the accused may be satisfied that there ought to be a doubt raised—that the point of law is not well settled. Take, for instance, the case stated here a day or two ago, of one judge having decided that the law was entitled to be decided by the court of appeals, and in a similar case, that he was not. Now, one of them was wrong, and the other right. A case as strong as this I met with myself.

In 1825-6, the legislature of Kentucky passed a law as important as ever enacted by them. That it should be no cause of challenge, or objection to a venire man, that he had formed or expressed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused, on more rumor, without having conversed with the parties, or the witnesses. I know, and I so stated at the time, that in two adjoining districts, one circuit judge decided this law to be constitutional, and the other to be unconstitutional, and the other circuit judge pronounced the law to be unconstitutional, and he would disobey it, and compel us to do so. Is that law important or not? Nothing can be more important than that a man shall be tried by an impartial jury, and the question arises, what constitutes impartiality, and the question before he is sworn on the jury? And one circuit judge decides the question one way, and another a different and directly opposite way. If the court of appeals were once to decide this controversial question, under the plan proposed in my amendment, their decision would be obligatory on all the circuit courts, and they have uniformity of decision on this vital question throughout the state.

I could go on and give instances innumerable of the uncertainty of the law in criminal cases, in this state, but those that I have enumerated are sufficient to answer my purpose, and show forth the evil I wish to remedy, by obtaining uniformity of decision in criminal cases, as well as correct and legal decisions. We who are now in this hall may not derive any benefit from it, as it must take some years before the present existing evils can be remedied, but our children and our children's children may. At the present time there is no settled criminal jurisprudence in Kentucky, but if my amendment is adopted, it will go far to secure that desirable object. There will grow up by degrees a settled, permanent criminal jurisprudence, arising from the decisions of the court of appeals in this state, on all the important points of criminal law, that will be sent up or carried up, either by the circuit court judges themselves, or the accused, until by and by, we shall have here what has been the glory and honor of England throughout her whole land, a permanent and intelligible criminal code of laws. How did her criminal code grow up? All of her acts of parliament relate to crimes, now in force, may be condensed in one volume, and the decisions of her courts expounding and explaining these acts of parliament, which form in reality her criminal code, are contained in volume on volume. The criminal law of England, previous to 1776, has been rendered obligatory in this state by acts of assembly, but for a time the decisions of her courts, on criminal as well as civil questions of law, could not be read here.

But legislation, like everything else, is progressive and improving; and five or six years ago the Legislature agreed that they might be read in our courts, but should not be authoritative. Now that is a very nice distinction, I confess; I am anxious that all the controverted and difficult points of criminal law, which from time to time may arise, shall be settled by the court of appeals, and thus be obligatory upon our circuit courts; and compel the judges to decide alike in the different circuits, in all criminal cases; and it will then be some consolation to a criminal to know, that he suffers, that all who commit similar crimes, will suffer a similar punishment.

FRANKFORT.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1849.

JOHN W. FINNELL, Editor.

The winter term of the court of appeals, commences to-day.

The convention concluded on Saturday last, the consideration of the report of the committee on the Executive Department.

By the provisions of the article in relation to that department, as amended and passed by the convention, the Governor is to be elected for four years; the Auditor and Register of the Land Office, for four years; the Treasurer for two years—all to be elected by a vote of the people. The Secretary of State, it is provided, shall be appointed by the Governor. The duties prescribed for the Lieutenant Governor, are about the same as under the present constitution; it is provided, however, that in case of a vacancy in the office of Governor, by the death or resignation of the incumbent, or otherwise, within two years after his installation, a new election shall be held to fill the office; but if the vacancy shall not occur until after two years of the administration shall have elapsed, then the Lieutenant Governor shall succeed to the office of Governor.

The Yeoman of Thursday last, contains an article in defence of Mr. Beverly L. Clarke, the delegate from Simpson, against the assaults made upon that gentleman, by several presses and letter-writers; and particularly against the accusations preferred against him by a correspondent of the Hopkinsville Press. The assaults which have been made upon many of the prominent gentlemen of the convention by several letter-writers from this place, have been of a character almost unprecedented in the history of partisan warfare. Those delegates have been denounced and vilified, and subjected to ridicule in all its forms. We have been able to see no justification for these assaults; the delegates have labored to discharge their duties faithfully; that they have not always concurred with us in opinion, we have not deemed an excuse or justification for an assault upon them. These assaults have not been confined to gentlemen of either one of the political parties. Whigs and Democrats have alike fallen under the displeasure of the fault-finding and censorious editors and correspondents. We have thought it proper but on one occasion to say any thing in regard to these matters, so far as they were pointed at individual delegates. The gentlemen of the party to which we belong, who have been the objects of these attacks, in our judgment, needed no defence at our hands. Their words and their acts, faithfully chronicled, are before the country, and they furnish the best refutation of the groundless charges preferred against them.

Our purpose, however, on this occasion, was to correct a statement in the article in the Yeoman, in regard to the attack against Mr. Clarke, in a letter addressed to the Hopkinsville Press. The editor gives the correspondent a severe and well merited castigation, and says:

"We have no knowledge of this correspondent of the Press, but if he should be able to judge from the violence of his attack upon the leading pro-slavery demagogues in the convention, we would say that he is an abolition whig, and we doubt if he did not vote against the calling of a convention."

It will be recollected that the Hopkinsville Press is a democratic paper—thorough and ultra democratic. Our information is, (and it was derived from most reliable authority,) that the correspondent of the Press is not an "abolition whig," but an abolition hypocrite, and that he is known to be such by the editor of the Press. The slightest effort on the part of our neighbor would have put him in possession of that fact; and we submit to him if it is not due to Mr. Clarke and himself, and to candor and fairness, to correct the impression which his article is calculated to make.

The charter for the Henderson and Nashville railroad, has passed both houses of the Tennessee Legislature.
The charter will be submitted to the next Legislature of Kentucky.
The road, if completed, and the friends of the enterprise are very sanguine—will be of immense benefit to the southern section of Kentucky.

The National Intelligencer, of the 27th ult., announces the resignation of the Hon. NATHAN F. DIXON, the member elect from Rhode Island to the House of Representatives in Congress. The resignation of Mr. Dixon at this particular juncture, is, to say the least of it, an act of very great injustice to his party. No reason is assigned for the course he has thought proper to adopt.

The Louisville Journal of Saturday last, says: Hogs.—The market has at present a decidedly upward tendency, and the sales yesterday ranged from $2 60 to $2 65 net. The weather has moderated a little, but is yet quite favorable for packing operations.

Hogs.—The business of hog slaughtering commenced at the pork-house last Monday, and is now going on quite briskly. Mr. Thomas Quigg, the principal buyer in this market, has purchased about 9,000 hogs at $2 @ $2 12 1/2, dividing on 212 pounds.—Baiting Green Intelligencer.

THE FLORIDA INDIANS.—Private letters received from Tampa, Florida, by a gentleman of this city, inform us that the delegation from the Western Seminoles, accompanied by their agent, Mr. Deval, Esq., and Luther Blake, Esq., arrived at Gen. Twiggs's headquarters on the 10th inst. The delegation is composed of ten Seminoles and two interpreters, and they express great confidence in their ability to accomplish the object of their visit, and that they will be able to induce the entire body of Indians, now in Florida, peaceably to remove and unite with their brethren in the west.—Washington Republic.

FLOODING IN THE NAVY.—A paragraph has been going the rounds of the press, and which was republished in the Republic yesterday through inadvertence, stating that forty-four thousand eight hundred and thirty lashes had been inflicted on board the United States ship Independence during one trip; we have the most unquestionable authority to say it is without foundation. The citation of Commodore Stewart as authority for the statement is alike a gratuitous use of his name, as well as a piece of gross injustice to the officers who had charge of the Independence during the trip in question.—Republic.

FOREIGN NEWS.—By TELEGRAPH.—From the Louisville Journal of Saturday, we copy the subjoined news by the last steamer. Read the eloquent extract from the address of Kossuth to his countrymen:

HALIFAX, NOV. 29.
Kossuth's Address.—The ingrate whom thou hast fostered with thy abundance, he rose against thee, traitor to thy mother, and destroyed thee utterly. Thou hast been betrayed—thou hast been sold by my country—thy death sentence has been written, beloved of my heart, by him whose virtue, whose love I never dared to doubt. Yes, in the fervor of my boldest thoughts I should almost as soon have doubted the existence of the Omnipotence as believe that he should ever be a traitor to his country. Thou hast been betrayed by him in whose hands I have placed the power of the Omnipotence, and he has sold thee to the last drop of his heart's blood—he hath done treason to his mother, and the glitter of gold hath been for him more seductive than that of the blood shed for his country. I have gained his love in his eyes, but he has abandoned God and has abandoned him as he has abandoned his God for his allies in hell. Maygars, beloved companions, blame me not for having cast mine eyes on this man and for having given to him my love; it was necessary, for the people had been deceived on him, their confidence. The arm of my country, and he obtained a power of which I myself would have been proud, and nevertheless this man belied the confidence of the nation, and has repaid the love of the army with hatred. Curse him people of Maygars—curse the breast that did not dry up before it gave him milk.

LONDON, NOV. 16.
Advices from Constantinople, to the 1st inst., state that the British fleet was anchored in Alonkin Bay, and would remain there until the arrival of the courier with the Czar's answer to the communication of Pund Effendi; should that answer prove unfavorable the fleet will be ordered to Constantinople. Sir Stratford Canning has been communicated to the Turkish Government that the English Cabinet had unanimously agreed to form offensive alliance with the Porte, in event of hostile proceedings on the part of Russia. Similar communications have been made by Gen. Aupick on behalf of the French Government. Spanish troops in Rome have received orders to march to the coast.

Sir E. Bulwer, Minister to the United States, went on board the steamer "Heate" on the 15th inst.

There are between eighteen and nineteen thousand post-offices in the United States. These, when the present Administration came to power, were almost exclusively filled by Locofocos. Between three and four thousand of the incumbents, or about one in five, it is said, have been turned out. The editor of the Louisville Democrat thinks that such a wholesale proscription was never before heard of since the world began.—Russell's Herald.

DIED, in Cynthiana, Kentucky, on Saturday night, the 24th inst., Mrs. SALLY E., aged 29 years, wife of M. L. Broadwell, and daughter of B. W. Finnell, Esq., of Georgetown.

We are called upon by this event to record the death of a good woman; one who, in the responsible and important station of daughter, wife, mother, and relation, was all that we could ask or expect in this frail world. But few pass away so much lamented; in early life she attached herself to the Christian Church, in which she was a faithful worshipper till the day of her death. It is our fervent hope, that the disconsolate husband and sorrowing parents may be sustained by the same fountain of grace and mercy in which the departed trusted for eternal salvation. Green shall grow the grass over the grave of "Sally," and nature write the blessed words of peace with flowers thereon.

"O think not, grave, that we resign
This treasure as forever thine;
We only ask a transient day,
Till heaven unfolds the eternal day."
"That blissful hope the bosom cheers,
To meet again, and sorrow drive away."
When we have passed this vale of tears;
That we all shall meet again in heaven." S. E. B.

DIED, in Mercer county, at his residence near Harrodsburg, on Friday last, on the 23d inst., of consumption, PHILIP T. ALLIS, Clerk of the Mercer Circuit Court.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DENTAL SURGERY.

BY E. G. HAMBLETON, M. D.

HIS operations on the Teeth will be directed by a scientific knowledge, both of Surgery, and Medicine; this being the only safe guide to uniform success. From this he is enabled to operate with far less pain to the patient, and of danger. All work warranted, the workmanship will show for itself. Calls will be thankfully received.
Office, in front Room of his residence on St. Clair street, opposite the Telegraph Office.
